Student Conduct

Students are expected to conduct themselves in a responsible, respectful, and professional manner at all times. Respect for the rights, dignity, and property of others is essential to maintaining a positive learning environment. Students are expected to demonstrate appropriate behavior in classrooms, laboratories, clinical settings, online learning environments, and all other College-sponsored activities.

Students shall exercise care and respect for College facilities, equipment, and property, as well as the personal property of others. Damage to College property resulting from misuse, negligence, or intentional misconduct may require restitution and may result in disciplinary action.

Students are expected to uphold the highest standards of academic integrity. Cheating, plagiarism, fabrication, unauthorized collaboration, or knowingly providing false information are prohibited and may result in disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal from a program or the College. Examples of academic misconduct include, but are not limited to:

- Copying another student's work or allowing another student to copy your work.
- Looking at another individual's work during quizzes, examinations, or assessments.
- Using unauthorized notes, materials, electronic devices, artificial intelligence tools, or other resources during testing or assessments.
- Submitting work completed by another person as your own.
- Sharing, posting, purchasing, or distributing coursework, assignments, tests, or assessment materials without authorization.
- Falsifying records, documents, or information submitted to the College.

Disciplinary Action

Technical College of the Rockies reserves the right to take disciplinary action when a student's conduct violates College policies, program requirements, or applicable laws. Depending on the nature and severity of the violation, disciplinary action may include a warning, probation, removal from specific activities, suspension, restitution, or dismissal from a program or the College.

Appropriate Attire

Students are expected to maintain a professional appearance consistent with a postsecondary educational environment and industry expectations. Individual programs may establish additional dress code requirements based on safety standards, professional practices, or clinical and workplace expectations.

Clothing that is excessively revealing, transparent, offensive, disruptive to the learning environment, or creates a safety concern is not permitted. Examples include, but are not limited to, see-through clothing, excessively low-cut tops, and attire that exposes undergarments. Students who fail to comply with program or College dress standards may be required to change clothing before participating in class, laboratory, clinical, or other program activities.

Reviewed: June 3, 2026 by TCR Administration